Item 1

At Mwirima High School in Kasese District, parents turned up for a Parents-Teachers Association Meeting that usually closes and opens the academic year. Among the key issues to discuss were improvement of welfare for both staff and students, formulating new school rules and regulations basing on the changing times, planning for the new academic year, discussing, formulating and approving working budget for the academic term as well as planning for the construction of three standard classrooms and a girls' dormitory. It is fortunate that 90% of the parents have turned up for the meeting; however, the discussion is entirely done in English yet most of the parents do not understand the language.

After the meeting, parents stand outside in groups expressing their dissatisfaction with the entire school administration for leaving them out of the discussion by holding the meeting entirely in English; thus, their well-meaning ideas were frustrated by language barrier. Many questions arise as to why the PTA could not use the local language to allow free discussion and why matters to do with their own native school should be discussed in English. In the end, the entire community seems to suggest that local languages should be emphasized in schools than English.

Your school has been invited by the National Curriculum Development Centre to participate in the Thematic Curriculum Debate at the village square discussing important issues regarding the inclusion of local languages in school curriculum. The debate motion is "Should government support local languages more than English?"

Task:
As the debate prefect and first speaker at the debate, prepare strong arguments either for or against the motion in the above scenario using vivid examples from both your school community and the community outside school. (30 scores)

Item 2
In many rural and semi-urban schools, "unwanted" boy-girl relationships have become a major concern for parents and teachers. While these friendships often start as simple companionship, they frequently lead to early pregnancies, school dropouts, and the spread of STIs. In response, many schools have adopted a "zero-tolerance" policy, summarily expelling any student seen talking to the opposite sex. This has created an atmosphere of fear and secrecy, where students hide their problems instead of seeking guidance. Parents are angry at the schools for "chasing away" their children's future, while teachers argue they are protecting the school's reputation and moral standards.
As a student leader and a member of the School Health Club, write an essay on the dangers of immediate expulsion of students caught red-handed in boy-girl romantic relationships and then explain how the school can create a safe environment where students learn about boundaries, self-respect, and the without losing their right to an education. Item 3
A country is currently under a leadership style that many citizens describe as a "dictatorship." The government has banned public gatherings, restricted the use of social media, and often uses the police to silence those who disagree with its policies. The leadership argues that these "tough measures" are necessary to maintain peace, prevent riots, and ensure the country stays stable for economic growth. However, the youth who make up the majority of the population—feel suffocated. They argue that without the freedom to speak and innovate, the country's "stability" is actually a form of stagnation that leads to unemployment and hopelessness.

You have been chosen to represent the National Youth Council at a high-level "Peace and Governance" summit by submitting a write up. Write an essay addressing the dangers of dictatorship to a country like Uganda and suggest a "Democratic Roadmap" that allows for more freedom of speech and political participation while still ensuring the country remains peaceful and orderly.
